What is a County Commissioner?

The county commissioner is responsible for roads and bridges within their precinct and makes policy-making budget decisions. Four commissioners, elected from a quarter of the county's population, serve along with the county judge on the commissioner's court.

What does a County Commissioner Do in Texas?

A county commissioner in Texas has the following duties:

- As member of the Commissioners' Court, exercises broad policy-making authority.
- Represents one of four precincts within the county.
- Typically, responsible for building and maintaining county roads and bridges within the precinct.

Commissioners' Court

The Commissioners' Court conducts the general business of the county and consists of the county judge and four commissioners.

The Commissioners' Court has the following duties:

- Adopts the county's budget and tax rate.
- Approves all budgeted purchases of the county.
- Fills vacancies in elective and appointive offices.
- Sets all salaries and benefits.
- Has exclusive authority to authorize contracts.
- Provides and maintains all county buildings and facilities.

For more complete information about the responsibilities of a county commissioner and other county officials, see the "Guide to Texas Laws for County Officials."